STATISTICS

BOOTCAMP

The Statistics Bootcamp is an intensive one-month program specifically designed to strengthen and further develop probability, estimation and skills in hypothesis testing. It provides a foundation for any beginning statistics class.

This program is open to any students enrolling in Statistics for the Fall 2019 semester.

Benefits will include:

- A head start on Statistics course content
- Discussion and group activities designed to improve student success
- An introduction to the rigors of college-level coursework
- Improved course performance compared to students who do not participate
- Statistics and study strategy workshops
